You are cordially invited to the opening of the solo exhibition Perennial emergence by Mori Sikora, which will take place on Friday, 22 March 2024, at 6 p.m. in the artKIT exhibition space.

The textile works hanging in the exhibition space combine the natural world of plants and their extracts to transform the fabrics into vessels with memories (of plants and the environment in which they lived). Mori Sikora's artistic works are the result of a long process of experimenting with different materials – plants, flowers, natural extracts and colors – and exploring different manipulations of the fabric, such as patching, embroidering, sewing and assembling small pieces into larger collages.

More recently, one of her fundamental working principles is sustainability – how to create without unnecessary pollution and excessive production, using materials she already has or can easily source or collect. Some of her works are made from repurposed fabrics, threads and yarns.
